

Endorsements for In Defense of Globalization

This is the book that everyone has been waiting for.

George Akerlof, Nobel Laureate in Economics

This book will make history. It will also be a blockbuster, not only because of the depth of Bhagwati's powerful argument backed by extensive research, but also because it is immensely readable and surely the most humorous piece of economics ever written.

Hernando de Soto, Author of The Other Path and The Mystery of Capital

Jagdish Bhagwati has written a brilliant book... You may not always agree with him --- I don't --- but In Defense of Globalization is bound to become a classic.

Richard Sennett, Professor of Sociology, London School of Economics

Professor Bhagwati delivers in this volume, both with erudition and wittiness, a precise rebuttal of the most common and pernicious fallacies about globalization.

Ernesto Zedillo, Former President of Mexico

The new century's major economic issue is Globalization, Yes? or Globalization, No? Columbia University's Bhagwati, long regarded as a master economist by all trade experts, has prepared for the intelligent public an even-handed analysis of the pros and cons. Read and ponder.

Paul Samuelson, Nobel laureate in Economics
