

Columbia University - Sciences Po Cooperative PhD Program in Political Science

Call for application 2012-2013

Double doctorat Sciences Po / Columbia University Dual PhD Columbia University / Sciences Po

This dual degree PhD program in Political Science allows Columbia and Sciences Po students to spend two years at the partner institution and to receive PhD degrees from both institutions. Building on a decade of strong existing collaboration between our two institutions through the Alliance Program, this dual degree furthers our mission to extend our global engagement by supporting an international approach to the scholarly training of a new generation of political scientists. For more information on the Dual PHD program, please refer to the website of the Ecole doctorale of Sciences Po: http://ecoledoctorale.sciences-po.fr/dd_sciencespo_columbia/index.htm.

Eligibility conditions

The students currently on their first year of thèse (dissertation) at the Doctoral Studies Program of the Political Science Department are eligible to apply.

Candidats' file

Students must present the following documents:

- a letter of motivation
- a detailed CV along with a list of publications
- a dissertation project of 10 pages
- a summary of the dissertation in one page
- three letters of recommendation (two of which will be from the dissertation advisor from Sciences Po and from the dissertation advisor from Columbia), sent directly from the professors to Marie-Hélène Kremer, via email
- a certificate of English language level (at most 2 years old): TOEFL (minimum scores: 250, 600, or 100 depending on the version of the test) or IELTS (minimum score: 7)

All the documents are required in English.

Application Deadline

For Sciences Po Students, the application must be sent by email by December 2nd, the latest to Marie Helene Kremer from the Ecole Doctorale, mariehelene.kremer@sciences-po.fr

Announcement of results

February 2012