

the institute for research on women and gender

presents

feminist
film screenings

february

series:

"a
dirty
shame"

february 3

a dirty
shame

john waters, 89 min., 2004
5:30pm, 612 schermehorn extension

an uptight, middle-aged, repressed woman turns into a sex addict after getting hit on the head, and she then falls into an underground sub-culture of sex addicts in suburban baltimore.

february 10

ethan mao

quentin lee, 88 min., 2004
5:30pm, 754 schermehorn extension

kicked out of his house because he's gay, ethan mao returns home to steal and ends up holding his family hostage on a fateful thanksgiving day.

february 24

brother to brother

rodney evans, 90 min., 2005
5:30pm, 612 schermehorn extension

a drama that looks back on the harlem renaissance from the perspective of an elderly, black writer who meets a gay teenager in a new york homeless shelter.

february 17

kissing
jessica
stein

charles herman-wurmfeld,
96 min., 2002
5:30pm, 612 schermehorn ext.

jessica stein is a single, straight, successful, journalist, part of a bonded jewish family, who finds herself not as straight as she thought when she meets & begins an intense friendship w/career woman helen cooper which ultimately leads to romance.

for more info. please contact irwag@columbia.edu