DESCRIPTION:

William Campbell (1876-1936), a geologist and metallurgist from Great Britain, joined the Columbia School of Mines faculty in 1902. Most of his papers are of a personal nature including ca. 100 items of personal correspondence (incoming), his World War I naval records, his financial records and memorabilia. There are a few miscellaneous letters relating to his academic career, some miscellaneous notes and daily calendar memoranda. Included is a holograph (?) laboratory notebook of the British metallurgist, Saville Shaw, with typescript transcripts of contents along with notes by Campbell.
