DESCRIPTION:

The papers of Rose Nadler Franzblau (1905?-1979), psychologist and syndicated newspaper columnist (Columbia University M.A. 1931; Ph.D. 1935), contain correspondence, manuscripts, notes, radioscripts, letters asking her advice, clippings, memoranda, announcements, photographs, tape recordings, records, books, pamphlets, and memorabilia.

In her New York Post column, "Human Relations", in magazine articles, and on radio and television, Dr. Franzblau applied the principles of Freudian theory to the problems of her readers from 1949 until 1976. She kept the vast number of letters asking her advice and the typescripts of her replies.

Earlier she had been a specialist in personnel management for the United Nations and the U.S. Government.

She was also active in philanthropy and a financial backer of Broadway plays.

Among the cataloged correspondents are Ann Landers, Jo Mielziner, Dorothy Schiff, and Abigail Van Buren.
