DESCRIPTION

The papers of Daniel Longwell, (1899-1968), document an influential career in publishing and journalism. As an editor at Doubleday Mr. Longwell supervised the publication of works of Edna Ferber, Ellen Glasgow, and other writers. In 1934, he joined Time, Inc., where he was one of the founding editors of Life, and chairman of the board of editors from 1946 until his retirement in 1954. There are files of correspondence with such notables as Sir Winston Churchill, Ernest Hemingway, Thomas Hart Benton, the Duke and Duchess of Windsor, Christopher Morley, and H.L. Mencken. In addition, the collection includes correspondence and memoranda dealing with the Time-Life organization, among them an extensive series of letters from Henry A. Luce and various editors of the magazines.
