DESCRIPTION:

John Howard Payne: Manuscripts by Payne: plays, poems, journals, essays, account books, correspondence, letter books (to and from) -- including a large group of letters from Washington Irving. Pictorial material, scrapbooks, biographies, portraits, passports, and other documents. Materials on the Cherokee incident (1835-1838) and Payne's arrest in Georgia.

Other material: Letters, etc. of various members of the Payne family and of related families. Of greatest interest is a group of fine letters and manuscripts of Eloise Richards Payne (1787-1819), a sister of the playwright. These present a sensitive and revealing portrait of the social, cultural, and political life of the time. "In force and beauty of diction, passages in her writings recall those of De Staël, and it is to be regretted that they have not been included in the literature of America." (Eliza C30.2(10/68) 50 Quincy's Memoir). At one time, the publication of these papers was, in fact, projected. Among the manuscripts and documents are many items of genealogical interest on the Paine, Shippen, Lynch, Luquer, and Lea families.

Two boxes of the papers of Col. Thatcher Taylor Payne Luquer contain correspondence, etc., on various aspects of John Howard Payne's career, and on "An Unconscious Autobiography", the letters and diaries of (over)

William Osborn Payne (1783-1804) - a brother of the playwright - edited by Col Luquer.
