DESCRIPTION:

Charles Dudley Warner (1829-1900), American author and editor, is best known, perhaps, for his essays and humorous sketches. He edited the American Men of Letters Series and A Library of the World's Best Literature, and is author of Backlog Studies, Being a Boy and My Summer in a Garden<sup>1</sup>

The letters are written to various people and are partly social and partly business in nature. Some give advice about publishing matters; others discuss Warner's extensive public speaking engagements.
