HISTORICAL SKETCH: RUSSKII OBSHCHE-VOINSKII SOIUZ

The Russkii Obshe-Voinskii Soiuz (ROVS or the Russian Universal Military Union) was founded on September 1, 1924 in Yugoslavia by Petr Wrangel (in his order no. 35 of that year) in conjunction with several emigre White military organizations. In its early years, ROVS was essentially an umbrella organization for several other military unions, such as the Soiuz Ofitserov and the Soiuz Gallipoliitsev, which generally encompassed smaller constituent groups. Grand Duke Nikolai Nikolaevich, who was living in France at that time, became the nominal commander-in-chief, although Wrangel as the military commander-in-chief was responsible for the actual functioning of ROVS. Wrangel and Grand Duke Nikolai Nikolaevich directed ROVS until their deaths in 1928, whereupon Aleksandr Kutepov assumed the chairmanship and directed it until his kidnapping in January, 1930. Evgenii Miller succeeded Kutepov as chairman and remained in control until his kidnapping in September, 1937. Mikhail Kedrov took over command of ROVS in the interim between Miller's disappearance and the appointment of <sup>his + before</sup> Aleksei Arkhangel'skii as chairman. Arkhangel'skii served as chairman until his death, from natural causes, in 1959. Aleksei von Lampe succeeded Arkhangel'skii, serving until his death in 1967.

Sremski Karlovci, Yugoslavia and Paris were the first two major centers of ROVS' activity. Then, during 1926-1927, Wrangel moved from Yugoslavia to Brussels. When Kutepov assumed command of ROVS, most of the central activities were consolidated in the region of Paris. Miller, Pavel Shatilov and Ivan Khol'msen had been active in Paris since 1924.

Europe was the primary arena of ROVS' activity. It was divided into six otdely (sections).

I Otdel - France (and Belgium during 1924)

II Otdel - Germany; also including Latvia, Estonia, Hungary, Danzig

III Otdel - Bulgaria, Turkey

IV Otdel - Yugoslavia

V Otdel - Belgium, Luxembourg

VI Otdel - Czechoslovakia

There were also two otdely in North America, one based in New York and the other in San Francisco. In addition, there were several other, small groups in Australia, South America, China and elsewhere.

I Otdel files from 1924-1935 are primarily concerned with activities inside of France. I.A. Khol'msen, nachal'nik of the I Otdel from 1924 until c.1930, and P.N. Shatilov, who was second in command (nachal'nik grup i chastei) of the I Otdel during this period, worked to help Russian refugees settle in France by finding employment, raising money, assisting with identity papers etc. and also worked to establish military cells throughout the country. Shatilov, whose files in this collection are much more extensive than those of Khol'msen, took over the responsibility of the I Otdel after Khol'msen and directed it until June 30, 1934, when I.E. Erdeli assumed command for one year. During 1935 ROVS was reorganized and the I Otdel was incorporated into the Central Office. Miller assumed control of the activities in France during 1935. At this time the I Otdel became synonymous with the Central Office.

A.P. Arkhangel'skii became chairman of ROVS soon after Miller's kidnapping in 1937. He continued to reside in Brussels although the Paris office (I Otdel) remained the center of the organization.

Yugoslavia to I Otdel (1931-1932)

As a result of the reorganization effort in 1935, the activities of the Central Office and the I Otdel were combined. For the sake of consistency within each series, the first terminology has been used throughout the series where changes did occur. For example "II Otdel to Central Office" is used from 1929-1937, even though after 1935 the II Otdel was nominally writing to the I Otdel.

A.A. von Lampe was the nachal'nik of the II Otdel during the late 1920's and the 1930's. The correspondence of his assistant A.G. Semenovskii is included.
