PRACTICAL.

Mr. Pulltext (trying to enforce the doctrine that total depravity is a fixed fact, and that the hearts of the youngsters, even those in his Sunday-school class, are sinful and need regulating)—Here is my watch. It is out of order. There is something the matter with it, for it will not run right. To-day it is too fast, to-morrow too slow. Now, what shall I do with it?

Four boys, all at once—Take it to Simpson's.

MANY will laugh at the conjunction of the names Ralph Waldo Emerson and Maggie Mitchell; but it is a fact that in 1863 the great philosopher, the adelantado, the highcockalorum of the transcendental school of incomprehensible didacticism, actually wrote a poem which he inscribed to the only Fauchon. It was entitled "The Shadow Dance," and is one of the prettiest things in verse that ever came from the Hub.

THE AMATEUR DEFINITION.

The National Association defines an amateur oarsman to be: One who does not enter into an open competition, or for either a stake, public or admission-money, or entrance-fee, or compete with or against professionals for any prize; who has never taught, pursued, or assisted in the pursuit of athletic exercises as a means of livelihood; whose membership of any rowing or other athletic club was not brought about, or does not continue, because of any mutual agreement or understanding, expressed or implied, whereby his becoming or continuing a member of such club would be of any pecuniary benefit to him whatever, direct or indirect, and who has never been employed in any occupation involving the use of the oar or paddle (as adopted Aug. 28, 1872, and amended Jan. 20, 1876), and who shall otherwise conform to the rules and regulations of this Association.

THE JUNIOR DEFINITION.

A junior sculler is one who has never pulled in a senior nor won a junior race. A junior oarsman is one who has never pulled an oar in a senior race nor been a winning oarsman in a junior race. Competitions among members of his own club, or a private match, will not affect the standing as a junior of any oarsman or sculler. The qualifications of a junior oarsman or sculler shall relate to each time of his coming to the starting-post, whether in a trial or a final heat.

The definitions adopted by other Associations here and in England will be found in the CLIPPER ALMANAC for 1883.

THE DAWNING OF THE YEAR.

WRITTEN FOR THE NEW YORK CLIPPER ANNUAL,
BY T. C. HARBAUGH.

The New Year has come from its bowers,
Where the winds of the Orient blow;
It has dawned on a south land of flowers,
It has smiled on a north land of snow.
Away with the sorrow that darkles,
And welcome the morning of cheer!
Fill high with the vintage that sparkles
A cup to the gleesome New Year!

A sigh for the year that has vanished,
A tear for its garlanded dead,
A laugh for the loves with it banished,
A song for the year in its stead!
The year that has fled took December,
With many a tempest-rent day;
The New Year that greets us, remember,
Will open the blossoms of May!

We stand in the flush of its dawning
That falls upon lilies and snow,
And fresh in our faces this morning
The winds of the Orient blow!

Last night on the star-dials of heaven,
In beauty and brilliance drest,
Time wrote for one year "Eighty-seven!"
And opened the door to our guest.

Let joy be the pearl that reposes
In beakers of welcoming wine,
O land of midwinter roses!
O snow-laureled mountains of pine!
O year! to thy aureoled beauty
We open the flag of the free;
And a psalm of love and of duty
Ascends by the Occident sea!

A song for the New Year's bright morning!
For the loves that it brings us a rhyme!
A crown for the era adorning
Anew the keen sickle of Time!
We banish the sorrow that darkles,
A laugh takes the place of a tear;
And a cup with the vintage that sparkles
We fill to the blushing New Year!

DANIEL'S UMBRELLA.

Young Moses Kapinskoffski hungered for a chance to take in the amusive and instructive comedy of "Daniel and His Umbrella" at the Oriental Theatre, the other night, but old Moses objected, first on the score of expense; secondly, because theatre-going was a dissipation.

"But, fader," said Moses Jr., "ven you vas young, you dit go to de tayahtre."

"Yase, mine sone," said the old man sadly, with a far-off look in his eyes, "bote I have since deese long time seen de foolishness off it."

"Vell, fader," said the younger, "yoost led me go. I vood like to see de foolishness off it also."

He went, and on his return he sought the author of his being to receive his blessing before turning in for the night.

"Tell to me, mine sone, vat you hafe seen deese night," said the old man.

The boy described the play, criticised the execution of the lion chorus in the third act, and animadverted severely upon the cut of Daniel's coat, but was loud in his praises of the janitor of the den into which the prophet had been cast. "But, fader," said he, "dot umberella voz a schnide. Eet voz tin, very tin cotton; so tin dan baper, und you coot see troo it like as troo a glass poo-din. Eet voz a plue umberella, und I vood not lent not two cent on eet, so hellup me cracious."

"Voz de lengvich goot, Moses?" the old man asked, with an air of very sober and solemn earnestness.

"Yase, fader, eet voz. I dit neffer heerd de Hebrew spoke vid more Polish in mine life. I voot like to go vonce more again, Fader."

"Young mahn," said the elder, "I tell to you in de lengvitch off your country—for, mine sone, Bolland ees your country, aldough you hafe movit away from vere you leef now—'Niepeshh viepsha piepshin, posapiepshish viepsha piepshin'—vich, being inderbredit, ees: Do not bepper your pig vid too mooch salt; eef you do you veel not hafe no more pig to bepper. To go to de tayahtre vill not bay your poard, und eef Daniel's umberella voz de vinest silluk, vid a cold haintle und a haiteen garret tiament at bote ents, eet voot not py you a segont-bant baper gollar. So goot-night, und Gott pless you!"

THE ACTOR'S MODERN RIVAL.

Pictorial art of late years has become the actor's rival, and sometimes almost usurps the place of honor formerly held by the poetry of the dramatist. Even Shakespeare's wondrous work would now be shorn of its attractions unless set forth with a lavishness of scenic splendor. Yet it would be foolish to cry down the glitter and the show, for these are not always meretricious. There is a vulgarity in too much color, and it appeals to a barbaric taste; but the painter's and the decorator's art afford us pictures of exquisite and elevating beauty, and often lend welcome aid to the imagination in reproducing the past, and give delight to the eye in maintaining the harmony between the men and women of the present and their surroundings. Many of the plays produced here within the past ten years have been so artistically, so perfectly set, that their effects have been far broader and deeper, their illusions more vivid, their impressions more stimulating and their lessons far more decided and lasting than they could have been without the genius that gave shape and color to the thousand and one objects embraced in the still life of the stage. Then, female beauty is more or less identified and mingled with pictorial art; and while we gaze enraptured upon a paradise of intoxicating beauty, and watch the graceful movements of the richly-clad houris before us, how can we fail to think our thanks to the finished authors of their engarnishment? And then, how many of us could induce wife, sister or sweetheart to witness a play in which the divinities are robed in vestments made not by Worth, but by poor Madame Merit in her West-side garret, and thatched with hats bought of one of the five-and-thirty milliners all in a row in Division street? These be parlous words, my masters, but — is not Pictorial Art the Actor's great rival?

AMATEUR ATHLETICS.

NOTE.—The reader will bear in mind that better performances have upon other occasions been accomplished at nearly all the games enumerated below, a "best-on-record" not being requisite to secure a championship emblem.

AMATEUR DEFINITIONS.

AMERICAN NATIONAL ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION.

An amateur is any person who has never competed in an open competition, or for money, or under a false name; or with a professional for a prize, or where gate-money is charged; nor has ever at any time taught, pursued or assisted at athletic exercises for money, or for any valuable consideration. But nothing in this definition shall be construed to prohibit the competition between amateurs for medals, cups or other prizes than money. This definition is not retroactive, and all past acts of amateurs shall be judged in accordance with the provisions of the old definition, and the foregoing definition shall take effect on and after the first day of May, 1885.—Adopted March 21, 1885.

ENGLISH AMATEUR ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION.

An amateur is any person who has never engaged in, nor assisted in, nor taught any recognized athletic exercise for money, or who has never, either in public or in private, raced or exhibited his skill for a public or for a private stake, or other remuneration, or for a purse or for gate money, and never backed or allowed himself to be backed either in a public or private race.—Adopted 1886.

CANADIAN AMATEUR ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION.

An amateur is one who has never competed for a money prize or staked bet, or with or against any professional for any prize, or who has never taught, pursued or assisted in the practice of athletic exercises as a means of obtaining a livelihood.

LEAGUE OF AMERICAN WHEELMEN.

An amateur is one who has never engaged in, nor assisted in, nor taught 'cycling or any recognized athletic exercise for money or other remuneration, or knowingly competed with or against a professional for a prize of any description.

AMERICAN CYCLISTS UNION.

An amateur is any person who has never, either in public or in private, raced or exhibited his skill for a public or for a private stake, or for a purse, or for gate-money, and who has never competed under a false name, who has never backed or allowed himself to be backed either in a public or private race, and who has never assisted nor taught any recognized athletic sport for money.

A promateur is one who at any time or in any degree violated his amateur standing as defined above by receiving his expenses or other remuneration for riding the 'cycle in public exhibitions.

A professional wheelman is one who at any time and in any degree has violated his amateur or promateur standing as defined above.

NOTE.—The definitions adopted by other organizations will be found in THE CLIPPER ANNUAL for 1883.

THE OLD CLOWN.

WRITTEN FOR THE NEW YORK CLIPPER ANNUAL.

The lights were out in the circus tent,
And the old clown sat alone;
Amid the life of the dressing-room,
He bowed his head with a groan;
And no one seemed to see the tears
That dewed his powdered face—
Around were spangles, hoops and stars,
And a sea of gauze and lace;
And many a laugh rang loudly out,
For it was a merry place!

For many a year he'd made the world
Around him laugh with glee;
As jester king of the sawdust ring,
No rival e'er had he.
And hundreds going from the show
Laughed still at his latest jest,
And said that he in the ring that night
Was seen at his merriest;
But still the old clown sat alone,
With his head upon his breast.

The world knew not the grief that filled
The heart of the good old clown—
That while he cracked his many jokes
A sorrow weighed him down;
Nor had it seen the brief dispatch
Which he in tears had read
Ere into the ring, his songs to sing,
He came with merry tread;
And all the people shouted while
His baby afar lay dead!

He sat alone till a little child,
A sweet and winsome thing,
With deep blue eyes and golden hair,
The fairy of the ring,
Ran to him like a young gazelle—
Oh, 'twas a sight to see!—
And raised his head with roguish hands,
And climbed upon his knee;
Then threw her arms around his neck,
Laughing: "How gay are we!"

The old clown kissed a rosy cheek
And smoothed a golden curl,
Then to his bosom closely pressed,
With a sigh, the little girl.
"O Tiny Tess, the world to-night
Knelt at the jester's shrine,
The manager has told me that
Myself I did outshine,
Yet all the while I seemed to feel
A baby's hand in mine!

"I knew that in a little crib
A thousand miles away,
By a mother watched with tearful eyes,
A lifeless baby lay.
Methought I heard a feeble voice,
And then I seemed to see
Two tiny hands I've often kiss'd
Go out in search of me;
And here ten thousand people, Tess,
Laughed at the old clown's glee!

"They say the clown is but a fool,
Whose kingdom is the ring;
They come to hear his studied jests,
They flock to hear him sing.
O God! they think not that behind
The showman's pleasing art,
Or 'neath the powder and the cap,
Can beat a father's heart!
I played one role for them to-night,
To you another part!"

The voice grew still, the powdered face
Bent over Tiny Tess,
The little child was clapsed anew
In the spangled fool's caress.
The moments waned, but neither stirred:
"They're sleeping," someone said;
They dimmed the lights in the dressing-room,
And walked with noiseless tread;
And no one laughed, and no one sang,
For the good old clown was dead!

THEY have a democratic way of providing the public with amusement in Madrid that is economical withal, and deserves to be transplanted to the hither shore of the Atlantic. In the Spanish capital are theatres that have hourly performances throughout the evening. If you are poverty-stricken, yet ready to go without your evening meal rather than miss a favorite comedietta, you pay your peseta—19 cents—and enjoy a play that lasts a good full hour. At some theatres the price is two pesetas. If you wish to see another play, you deposit another fee, and after an interval of ten minutes you enter upon the enjoyment of the second hour of pleasure.

JOE JEFFERSON says "What is most wanting in good acting is a warm heart and a cool head." This remark applies not only to the rendering of a part, but also to the selection of a partner

IF Sir Arthur Sullivan knows on which side his bread is buttered, he will bring his latest production, "The Golden Legend," to the United States. It is a cantata, which is being rehearsed for the forthcoming Leeds festival, and which opens with the clanging of the bells, the scene being the spire of the Strasburg Cathedral, from which Lucifer and his gang of shameless sharpers from Sheol are trying to tear the cross. A splendid peal of bells, in exact imitation of the famous peal of the Strasburg Cathedral, is being specially cast for the piece. Our own Dudley Buck has made sonorous music out of Longfellow's beautiful poem, but Sir Arthur's version would still have novelty for us.

THE TRUE MODERN ACTOR—He who is sure of his way home after he has started out on the road.

* ODE TO DRAW POKER.

WRITTEN FOR THE NEW YORK CLIPPER ANNUAL.

BY SI SLOKUM.

Draw Poker, O draw poker!

Of all the games in vogue, bar none, the boss
Art thou; the game pre-eminent! On this
I'll stake a steak—beef, bear or venison,
As one may like it. Euchre, whist, "old sledge,"
And many others played by many men,
Are nowhere in the race. Thou lead'st the ruck
Full many lengths! When first thou didst appear
I neither know nor care; but know I this:
Thou can'st to conquer, and a conquered world
Lies at thy feet in chains—bar Austria,
Which ostracises, spurns and boycotts thee;
But all the same, that haughty sovereignty
Will yet the knee to thee in suppliance bend,
And tremble at thy power. I'll gamble high
On this, in shekels!

Poker, poker, oh,
Thou art a power Briarean, with "hands"
More numerous than had Briareus.
O gamble sui generis, unique,
Enticing, captivating, charming, "hot,"
To dally at the board with thee o' nights,
And revel in thy subtleties, will be,
Ere moons shall wax and wane in far decades,
The ruling passion of the fevered world!
When Love, which seizes all with grip red hot,
But cooling soon, a cold back seat will take,
Its sceptre laying at the victor's feet;
The "tender passion" yielding to the tough,
Whose grip relaxeth not! O poker, thou,
Sans pity, sans compunction, sans remorse,
Doth scoop weak mortals, old as well as young,
Regardless, quite, of color, race or sex—
Our womankind thou hast bedeviled, know—
Religion, politics or mental poise.
O dire the passion thou engenderest
Within the tissues of the human breast;
Once fire with it the yearning heart of man,
He never more will know surcease of heat
On earth—or in eternity, I doubt—
His goose is cooked!

O poker, bend do we,
And own thee master and ourselves thy slaves!
What with thy "squeezers" at the fateful board,
The frequent "deals" throughout the sitting there,

The ever-changing fitful "hands" we get
That give us "pairs" and "threes" and "straights" and "fours"—

Too often strays not worth a five-cent "chip"—
With "fulls" and "flushes," "royal" and the "straight,"

And "bobtails" all too oft—how vexing they!
And then the "ante," limited or not,
The "blind," and quick the "straddling" of the same,

Or, otherwise, the general "chipping in,"
And "passing of the buck," as goes the deal;
The "standing pat"—perchance to drop quite flat;
The frequent, speculative, fateful "draw,"
The "fill" or not—too often not; the "age,"
The "pass," the modest bet, the "raise"—"raise out;"

The contest narrowed down to two, when comes
The tug-of-war! The bet sagacious, then
The square-toed "raise"—perchance a guileful
"bluff;"

At last the "call," and best of all the "pot!"
What with all these—I leave the "jackpot" out—
With interest unflagging 'round the board,
Excitement more or less subdued, but felt,
Anxiety and hope deferred, yet strong,
Elation quiet when we "fill" and "rake"—
What with all these, I say, not mentioning
The nervous man and man who "knows it all,"
The chronic "growler" and the "jolly soul,"
The ready "bluffer" and the sheer dampfool,
Thou hast the bulge on weakly mortal man,
And tryest sorely, poker, thou, his soul;
Forget it not!

Could I but conjure thee
As thus or thusly: Go! get hence! begone!
It would be well; but thou hast come to stay—
Into "innocuous (blank) desuetude"
Will never slide. Break down wilt not, I trow,
Not being "structurally weak," but strong,
With a "pernicious (true) activity!"
But thou art no "offensive partisan,"
No party knowing but the grand "combine!"
And on to conquest thou wilt ever march
With "ghoulsh glee!"

PERCY BYSSHE SHELLEY AND THE THEATRE.

Up to a few years ago there was in Fishamble street, Dublin, an old theatre, where, in 1742, Handel presided over the performance of his own oratorios and cantatas, when the Goddess of Dullness, alarmed for her British sovereignty, "drove him to the Hibernian shore." In this old theatre, long years afterwards, the poet Percy Bysshe Shelley, not yet out of his teens, addressed an Irish audience for an hour. A reporter, sent by the police to furnish an account of the "Popish meeting," as they termed it, describes him as "a young boy whose speech was replete with much elegant language." Not far away, at No. 7 Angier street, Tom Moore was born, and from the balcony of the old house Percy and his sister used to scatter the young evangelist's Irish pamphlets among the people below. In another part of the ancient city—which, by-the-way, was never an Irish city—is Christ Church Cathedral, and, strange to say, Hell is within a stone's throw. The story of Death and Dr. Hornbook, says Bobby Burns,

Is just as true as the Devil's in Hell
 Or Dublin City.

It was a place where toys were sold and furnished lodgings let, as set forth in this old advertisement:

To be let, Furnished Apartments in Hell. N.B.—They are well suited to a lawyer.

Over the entrance were the effigies of the Devil, horns, hoofs, tail and all, which have long since been worked up into snuff-boxes and other relics. Close by is the last resting-place of Dean Swift. Donnybrook, where the fair used to glorify the month of June, is a dirty village on the skirts of Dublin, but the fields of revelry and riot, near which the Dodder ripples past, may still be seen; and through Sir Jonah Barrington's mirthful eyes we see the lively cussedness that has made the spot a favorite with playwrights for so many generations.

MUSIC-PUBLISHERS declare that whenever there appears in the papers one of those exaggerated and reckless articles concerning song-writers of the day, and the fabulous amounts they occasionally make on some simple song, they are sure to be overrun with song manuscripts of every conceivable kind. These rushes of business at least have the effect of giving professional song-fixers a chance to gather in a little wealth from their ambitious but idealess brethren.

A WELL-KNOWN director of rehearsals is wont to come at the company at the first meeting in this matter-of-fact way: "Ladies and gentlemen, I am engaged to direct this rehearsal. I will attend to my business—and I hope you will all attend to yours." The double meaning has the beneficial effect of squelching, at once, those nuisances who continually wish to "venture a slight suggestion."

"NEVER KNOWN TO FAIL."

TARRANT'S
COMPOUND EXTRACT
OF
CUBEBS AND COPAIBA

Is an old tried remedy, superior to any preparation hitherto invented, combining in a highly concentrated form the medical properties of the Cubebs and Copaiba.

Its neat, portable form, freedom from taste and speedy action (it frequently cures in three or four days and always in less time than any other preparation), make "Tarrant's Extract" the most desirable remedy ever manufactured.

To prevent fraud see that each package has a red strip across the face of label, with the signature of TARRANT & CO., N. Y., upon it.

PRICE, $1.00. SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS.
