INTRODUCTION.

THAT the AUTHORISED VERSION is in general a faithful translation of the Greek text as commonly printed, no one will deny. But when we compare it with the common Greek text, whether it be the third edition of Stephens, 1550, adopted by Walton, Mill, Lloyd, and others, or the second Elzevir edition, printed in 1633, commonly called the RECEIVED TEXT, we find several important differences, which show that the translators had before them, and in certain places followed, a text differing from the two named above.

| AUTHORISED VERSION. | COMMON GREEK TEXT. |
| Mat. II. 11. they saw, | they found. |
| Acts XXVII. 29. we should have fallen, | they should have fallen. |
| Heb. IX. 1. first covenant, | first tabernacle. |
| Rev. IX. 19. and in their tails, | omitted. |
| „ XVIII. 1. another, | omitted. |

With these differences before us, a question naturally suggests itself, Which is right? the Authorised Version or the Common Greek text? If it had pleased God to preserve the original records of the New Testament Revelation to our day, the task of testing the accuracy of both would be easy enough. But since it has not pleased Him, for wise and good reasons, to permit these documents to descend to our time, nor, that we are aware of, the first copies of them, we must, to answer our question, refer to the oldest MSS. we possess, on the ground that the nearer the witnesses we can adduce for the text are to the apostolic age, the more important is their testimony, and the more likely are they to be in accordance with the original documents. But here another difficulty meets us : how shall we ascertain the age of MSS. so as to discriminate between ancient and modern copies of the inspired word?

When we commence to investigate the antiquity of MSS., we find that some are written in uncial, or large capital letters, and others in cursive letters, or running-hand. A knowledge of the ancient writing enables us at once to pronounce that no cursive MSS. can date further back than the end of the ninth, or, according to Montfaucon, the tenth, century : before that time the uncial character was employed, whereas after the introduction of the cursive, the old uncial letters gradually disappeared. Having decided that the form of the letter in a MS. helps us to approximate its date, an attentive examination of it will enable scholars to ascertain pretty accurately about what century it must have been written. The peculiar form of the letters employed, the method of punctuation adopted, and the division into sections of the Sacred books, together with the addition of such works as those of Clement of Rome, or Barnabas, the companion of St. Paul, are helps for the critical scholar. We learn from Jerome, that the Eusebian canons, and the Ammonian sections,* were common in MSS. of the latter part of the fourth century. When, then, we find a MS., as the Codex Vaticanus or Codex Sinaiticus originally, without these divisions, we have good grounds for concluding (since the form of letter is undoubtedly ancient, being said to resemble the characters found in documents taken from Herculaneum), that these celebrated MSS. cannot be later than the fourth century. Turning for a moment to the Codex Alexandrinus, it is found by the form of letters used, that it certainly could not have been written later than the seventh century ; while by the presence of the Eusebian canons and Ammonian sections, it is most probably of later date than the Vatican MS. ; i.e. later than the end of the fourth century, but anterior (from their absence) to the general adoption of the Euthalian † sections, which was after the middle of the fifth century.

* Ammonius, of Alexandria, lived in the third century. Eusebius drew up his Canons in the early part of the fourth century.

† Euthalius, deacon of Alexandria, is thought to have introduced the divisions of the Pauline Epistles, in 458, A.D. and those of Acts and the Catholic Epistles later. Though called by his name, they were not originated by him.

INTRODUCTION.

Another help to determine the age of MSS., as stated above, is the absence of interpunction. "It seems probable that by the beginning of the fifth century (if not long before) the use of a dot to divide sentences had become very general, and that there was a kind of received punctuation thus adopted; which, though it did not serve to distinguish the pauses as our system does, sufficed to shew the reader when he might draw breath, without confusing those who were listening." The Vatican MS. has no interpunction of any kind; while the Codex Sinaiticus and Codex Alexandrinus have very little.

Another mark of antiquity is the absence of initial letters at the commencement of every paragraph. The Codex Alexandrinus has initial letters; but they are not placed at the commencement of a new paragraph, where it begins in the middle of a line, but at the commencement of the next line. Originally the Codex Vaticanus had none; a later hand has added them, without erasing the former letter. The Codex Sinaiticus has none at all.

But something more is wanted than the age of a MS., ere we can receive its readings as worthy of acceptance. We must have evidence that it is not only ancient, but also faithfully represents an ancient form of the text: for since neither the original documents of the New Testament, nor the first copies, are known to be in existence, it is quite possible that a MS. of later date than the oldest we possess, may have been copied from one older than the fourth century, and then in reality, though of later date than the Vatican MS., have stronger claims on our attention and respect. To decide this point, we can summon to our aid the ancient translations of the Greek New Testament in Syriac, Latin, Gothic, Memphitic, Thebaic, Armenian, all made probably at an earlier date than any existing MS. of the original. Besides these translations, we have citations from the early fathers, such as Justin Martyr, Clement of Alexandria, Irenæus, Tertullian, Origen, Eusebius, Jerome, Chrysostom, etc. to assist us. This last source of textual criticism, citations from the fathers, is often of special value; for, while it may sometimes happen that a passage from the New Testament is quoted only from memory, or for its general sense, because that was sufficient for the matter in hand; at other times, the author expressly states that in such or such a form was a text read in his day. If we find that the mass of modern MSS. exhibit a different form of the text from that which he evidently followed, while a few MSS., possessing internal marks of great antiquity, exhibit the very form he mentions, we are naturally led to the conclusion that the few MSS. whose texts in that place agree with the quotation as he gives it, being evidently very old, are more likely to resemble the original form than what is found in the more modern copies. And when agreements of this kind are found frequently between MSS. which have internal marks of great antiquity, and the early Christian writers, we may fairly conclude that these MSS. do in the main exhibit a very ancient, if not the original, form of the text. Now it is found by examination that the uncial MSS. of the seventh century and earlier, do very frequently agree with the quotations given by early Christian writers, while the more modern MSS. exhibit a text very similar to that which later writers must have had before them.

If, then, we apply the knowledge gained respecting the value of Uncial MSS. to the differences between the Authorised Version and the common Greek text stated above, we shall be able to answer the question, Which is right? the Authorised Version or the common Greek text?

Mat. II. 11.—The Authorised Version here has the support of all the uncial MSS. hitherto examined: viz., B C D E K L M S U V Δ, the Curetonian, the Peschito and Harclean Syriac, the Memphitic, Thebaic, Armenian, and Ethiopic versions, and Irenæus, Origen, Eusebius, Chrysostom of the Fathers. The common Greek text has only the support of cursive MSS. and the Vulgate.

Acts XXVII. 29.—All the uncial MSS. which have that portion of the text as A B C G H, and the Syriac, Vulgate, Coptic translations, agree with the Authorised Version; while the common Greek text has only the support of cursive MSS. and a few versions.

Heb. IX. 1.—All the uncial MSS. confirm the Authorised Version with most of the ancient translations; the common Greek text having only the support of cursive MSS., with the Coptic and an Arabic version.

Rev. IX. 19; XVIII. 1.—The uncial MSS. whose texts have been made public, agree with the Authorised Version in both places, together with nearly all the versions; the common Greek text having only the support of a few cursive MSS. We may say, then, with something like certainty, that, since the oldest MSS. we possess confirm the readings of the Authorised Version in the places cited above, the Authorised Version is right, and the common Greek text wrong. Now, since it is demonstrated that in certain places the common Greek text has readings decidedly inferior to the more ancient MSS. and versions, it becomes a question whether, in those passages where the Authorised Version agrees with it, we have the most ancient and best authenticated form of the text. This inquiry is prosecuted in the following pages. Before concluding this preface, it may, however, be well briefly to state the authority for the common Greek text, as it existed when the Authorised Version was made in 1611.

On January 10, 1514, the volume of the Complutensian Polyglot, containing the New Testament, was printed (though not published till 1520) under the direction of Cardinal Ximenes, at Alcala, the ancient Complutum. The MSS. used for the New Testament, appear to have been obtained from Rome. They cannot now be identified; but an examination of the readings adopted in this edition, proves that they were comparatively modern. In the autumn of 1515, Erasmus began to print the first edition of his Greek Testament, which, appearing in the spring of 1516, was the first printed Greek Testament ever given to the world. He, too, used only comparatively modern MSS. He did not, however, insert in this edition the famous passage of 1 John v. 7, 8, because it was not in the MS. he had before him; though he subsequently admitted it in his third edition, on the authority of one MS. of the fifteenth century. But he did insert in his first edition Acts viii. 37, and the addition to Acts ix. 5, on the authority of the Vulgate, as he acknowledges in his Annotations at the end of the volume. The Complutensian editors, on the other hand, acted with regard to these three passages in just the opposite way; inserting 1 John v. 7, 8, and leaving out Acts viii. 37, and the part of Acts ix. 5. Two more editions, making in all five, were published by him, the last in 1535.

In 1534, Colinæus had published a Greek Testament at Paris, partly based on MSS. newly consulted; but it does not appear (says Dr. Tregelles) to have influenced subsequent editions.

In 1546-49, Robert Stephens, of Paris, published two beautiful editions of the Greek New Testament in which he blended the readings of the two chief texts, the Complutensian and Erasmus's. In 1550 appeared his third edition, the text of which is almost identical with the fifth edition of Erasmus. In the margin, several readings are given, drawn from the Complutensian text, and fifteen MSS. "This," says Dr. Tregelles, "was the first collection of various readings of any extent; and it was at least suggestive of what might be done by means of MSS. in emending the text of the

INTRODUCTION.

Greek Testament." Soon after, in 1551, the fourth edition appeared, —the first that was divided into verses.

After Stephens came Beza, who published, between 1565 and 1598, five editions. He mostly followed Stephens's text; but in some places introduced changes on MS. authority. No other edition of importance appeared before 1611, when the Authorised Version was published. As Beza followed Stephens, and Stephens, in his folio edition, followed almost exclusively Erasmus, the authority for the Greek text in use in 1611 was little else than the fifth edition of Erasmus. No uncial MSS. are known to have been much used. Erasmus had procured a transcript of a few verses of 1 John iv. v. from the Vatican MS. (B), and Beza possessed the Codex Bezae (D) of the Gospels and Acts, and Codex Claromontanus (D) of St. Paul's Epistles; but he does not appear to have been much of a textual critic, a few only of the readings these MSS. exhibit having been noticed in his Annotations.

As the Authorised Version was published before textual criticism had made any progress, and when the most important aids for ascertaining the best readings were mostly unknown, it is a fair subject for inquiry how far the researches of textual critics have brought to light, and established as of unquestionable authority, any readings differing from our English translation. Even the "Textus Receptus," the second Elzevir edition, published in 1633, cannot claim the authority of uncial MSS. for its readings. The term received text, boastfully employed by the editors, may lead many to believe that it rests on unquestionable authority, whereas the contrary is the case; the received text is only entitled to our respect, in so far as it can be shown that it exhibits a text in conformity with the best and oldest MSS. The first real attempt to collate any uncial MS. was made by Bishop Walton, who in his London Polyglot (1657), gave the readings of the Alexandrine MS. that differed from the text of Stephens, which the Bishop had adopted. After him came Dr. Fell, Bishop of Oxford, Mill, Bentley, Bengel, Wetstein, all of whom increased the materials for a critical revision of the sacred text. At length, in 1774-7, appeared the first "text really critical ever published," edited by Griesbach. From him dates the commencement of a new era in textual criticism. He was succeeded by Scholz in 1830, Lachmann in 1831, Tischendorf in 1841, Tregelles in 1844, Alford in 1849; all of whom, whilst varying in points of detail, and even somewhat in their principles of applying criticism to the text, nevertheless in very many instances agree in rejecting the reading of the textus receptus, and in accepting another, supported by the best MSS.* A good instance of the need of acquaintance with the oldest and best authorities to establish the true text, is apparent in 1 John, where we have in ii. 25, a clause printed in the Authorised Version in italics, which should be, on the authority of the best MSS., in common type; whilst in v. 8, 9, a passage which is not found in any of the uncial MSS. A B G K N, which have preserved that part of the text, is printed as if of undoubted authority.

It now remains to say a few words respecting the present work, which is an attempt to afford the English Bible Student, in the form of marginal notes, all the latest information regarding textual criticism. To effect this, the readings of the Authorised Version are compared with those of Griesbach, Scholz, Lachmann, Tischendorf, Alford, and Tregelles, as far as the work of this last named critic has been published. It would have made the work more complete, if the three sources of textual criticism, MSS., versions, and patristic citations, had been referred to; but it was felt that for general readers the additional information would not have compensated for the enlargement of the work. The readings of the uncial MSS. alone are therefore given. The plan pursued has been to note only such readings as affect the sense. This, with few exceptions, has been adhered to. And to guard as much as possible against the charge of rashly proposing emendations, no reading is brought forward unless two or more, of the textual critics named above, agree in considering it worthy of notice. In following out this plan, some readings will be observed which may not have greater authority to support them than can be adduced for that followed by the translators of the Authorised Version; but it was felt that, where two or more of the critical editors have thought them worthy of notice, on the authority of uncial MSS., they should not be lightly passed by.

With the translation of the Authorised Version, this work has nothing to do, further than where a change of text necessitates a change of translation: wherever that is necessary, the author has not scrupled to adopt the translation given by Tregelles or Alford,

* For a full account of the history of the Printed Text, and the labours and principles of these textual critics, the reader is referred to the Account of the Printed Text of the Greek New Testament, and An Introduction to the New Testament, both by Dr. Tregelles.

INTRODUCTION.

when citing them as approving of the reading which differs from the Authorised Version.

In regard to a work of this kind very different opinions may prevail. Some may view with suspicion any attempt to disturb, as they think, men's minds, and make them dissatisfied with the existing version, or shake their belief in the inspiration of the record itself. To this it may be replied, that truth can never suffer by being faithfully set forth. And if we believe in the inspiration of the record itself, that the Spirit directed the penmen what to write, and the words they wrote were just the words, and conveyed just the meaning, that the Holy Ghost intended, it can never be out of place to see that we possess, as far as can be ascertained, the very expressions originally made use of. It must also be remembered, that when engaged in defending or propounding truth, we must rely on the exact expressions of Scripture. It is well, then, to be accurately informed regarding the authority for words or expressions on which we may wish to found an argument. For to rest our cause on a word or form of the text which an adversary may prove was unknown to the Church for the first six or seven centuries, is a dangerous, if not destructive course. Granted that the older readings, established on the best MS. authority, may deprive us of the use of some text hitherto adduced in defence of a certain truth, it does not deprive us of the truth itself, for that will not be found only in one passage of Scripture. As we could not determine beforehand what should form the subject of a Divine revelation, nor the precise mode in which that revelation should be conveyed to us, we have no right to accept or reject any reading because it militates against a preconceived opinion. Nor are we in a position to decide by internal spiritual illumination what should or should not be accepted as Scripture. Is it not our duty to accept any reading, however difficult it may be to comprehend, after satisfying ourselves of the trustworthiness of the source from whence it is derived, unless it contradicts other parts of the divine record? We may be well assured that copyists, whatever faults they had, were not in the habit of altering an easy reading into a difficult one; of substituting an unusual word for one in common use, or of increasing the abruptness of a sentence by the omission of words they found in it. It may surprise some to find so many places in which the oldest MSS. have not all the words the common text now exhibits; it should however be considered that copyists were always more inclined to add than to omit. Attention of late years has been much more drawn to this subject. The valuable revision of Diodati's Bible, published by the Society for Promoting Christian Knowledge, has done something for the Italian Bible student in this matter. The French translation of Rilliet, of Geneva, has placed within the reach of French Bible students a knowledge of what readings are now considered the best, and the authorities for and against them. The Book of the Revelation, translated by Dr. Tregelles, has shown English Bible students what might be done for the whole New Testament; while critical editions, such as those of Tischendorf, Tregelles, and Alford, have placed within the reach of scholars the latest results of labours in this department of Biblical study. It will not then, it is confidently hoped, be out of place to endeavour to put before the English Bible student the most important readings now generally accepted as correct by textual critics. It may help him to elucidate some passages in the New Testament. It will occasionally bring out the facts of history in greater vividness than before; and the argument will often be found to derive additional force by the omission or addition of words, as found in the oldest authorities.

INTRODUCTION.

It is hoped, too, that since some have of late years advocated a revision of the Authorised Version, whilst others have deprecated any attempt to alter it, this little work, by supplying the reader with the most important Various Readings of the New Testament, may provide, in some measure, for the want expressed by the former, without interference with the text of the Authorised Version, which is so strongly opposed by the latter. As was said above, for all the readings noticed, we cannot plead greater authority than what may be urged in support of the Authorised Version: but for some we certainly can. Those which have the support of all uncial MSS. few would probably question. Those, too, which all the textual critics named above, have adopted, most would be disposed to accept. Those, also, in which Lachmann, Tischendorf, Tregelles, and Alford are agreed, deserve, to say the least, our most careful consideration.

With these remarks, the following pages are commended to the prayerful attention of the English Bible student. What God has thought fit to write, we may be well assured must be worthy of our candid examination; and if there be any doubt as to the authentic reading of any one passage of the Sacred volume, it is not time thrown away if we endeavour to clear it up. Nor, when we have such increased facilities for ascertaining the more ancient form of the inspired record, should it be considered a matter of no importance whether we are acquainted with it or not. Yet let it ever be remembered that a mere acquaintance with the text of the Bible is of no use unless the Holy Spirit applies it to the heart ; and that all Biblical studies, to be profitable, must conduce to the one object, namely, "that the man of God may be perfect, thoroughly furnished unto all good works." 2 Tim. iii. 17.

- (Gb.→) A less probable omission.
- Gb.⊕ An addition of some slight probability.
- La. Lachmann's large edition, 1842–50, as given by Tregelles in his Collation of Critical Texts.
- (La.) A reading which Lachmann considered doubtful: so for other critical editors.
- MSS. All Uncial MSS. which have that portion of the text.
- Sch. Scholz's edition of 1830–36, as given by Tregelles in his Collation of Critical Texts.
- Tis. Tischendorf's seventh edition, Leipsic, 1859.
- Tre. Tregelles. The only portions hitherto published are the Gospels and Revelation. The readings in other parts of the New Testament are given on the authority of his Account of the Printed Text of the Greek New Testament.

* The reader may sometimes find Griesbach's marks (⇒) or (→) appended where no omission is apparent, as John viii. 38, “the Father” (Gb.⇒). This alteration involves the omission of the pronoun in Greek, with which, of course, Griesbach was alone concerned. Without this mark, the value attached by Griesbach to the reading could not be correctly given.

† B M S Δ mark the passage as doubtful. “Though I am fully satisfied that this narrative is not a genuine part of St. John’s Gospel, and though I regard the endeavours to make the evidence appear satisfactory, to be such as would involve all Holy Scripture in a mist of uncertainty, I see no reason for doubting that it contains a true narration. . . And thus I accept the narrative as true, although its form and phraseology are wholly uncertain, and although I do not believe it to be a Divine record.”—Account of the Printed Text of the Greek New Testament, by Dr. Tregelles, p. 241.

‡ Accepting this reading as correct, we may translate the verse: “I speak of what I have seen with the Father; do ye also therefore what ye have heard from the Father.”

* This verse is not found in the Complutensian Polyglot, which was the first printed Greek Testament. Erasmus inserted it in the first published Greek Testament without MS. authority, supposing that it had been accidentally omitted from the MSS. he followed.

† \approx at the end of verse 4, adds, “It is hard for thee to kick against the pricks.”

‡ E reads “Paul” for “Saul.”

§ “By four rope ends, not four corners.”—Alford.

|| B reads “two.”

APPENDIX.

THE READINGS OF THE CODEX SINAITICUS.

THE reader is requested to observe, that no reading of the Codex Sinaiticus inserted in the body of the work is noticed in the following pages, excepting such as have been altered by a corrector, in which case the original reading and the alteration are given. To compress the Appendix into the smallest possible compass, where no alteration has been made in the MS., those readings only are noted which agree with the Authorised Version. Where the reading of the MS. is not stated, it agrees with the critical readings given in the preceding pages. According to Prof. Tischendorf, the New Testament part of the Codex has been corrected by different scribes, distinguished in his prolegomena by the letters A B C. The corrections of the scribe A, cited in this Appendix as \aleph^2 , are found throughout the New Testament, the Revelation excepted; those of B, cited as \aleph^3 , in the Gospels only; those of C, cited as \aleph^4 , in the Acts and Epistles as \aleph^3 , and in the Revelation as \aleph^2 , are found throughout the whole New Testament. The original reading of the Codex is always expressed by \aleph^1 .

The corrections of B and C have been further subdivided by the Professor into B, B^a , C, C^a , C^b , C^c , C^c* . For a work designed for popular use, it has been thought sufficient to cite the different corrections of A B C, as explained above, without specifying them more minutely, e. g. \aleph^{3a} , \aleph^{4b} , etc.

EXPLANATION OF ABBREVIATIONS.

A. V., Authorised Version. C. R., Critical Readings.

A letter affixed to a verse, as Luke xi. 34^a, implies that the reference is to the first quotation from that verse; Mat. x. 8^b, to the second; Rev. i. 9^c to the third quotation.

THIS EDITION OF THE NEW TESTAMENT SCRIPTURES CONSISTS OF:—

- I. THE GREEK TEXT OF DR. M. A. SCHOLZ (Leipsic, 1830-6):
but carefully purged from the typographical inaccuracies found in that edition.
- II. Every variation between Scholz's Text and that of Griesbach's Manual (Leipsic, 1805); together with all those readings, of the value of which Griesbach expresses any judgment.
- III. The variations of the Text of the Third Edition of Stephens (folio, 1550).
The Text of this edition was followed by Dr. Mill, and is usually reprinted in England.
- IV. The variations of the Text of Beza's Fifth Edition (1598).
From which the Authorised English Translation is said to have been made: it is evident, however, that other editions were likewise consulted.
- V. The variations of the Second of the Elzevir Editions (Leyden, 1633).
- VI. THE ENGLISH AUTHORISED VERSION, according to the first Edition of 1611, the Italic words and punctuation of which have been carefully followed.
- VII. The Paragraphs into which the Greek Text is divided, have been regulated, in doubtful cases, by the divisions of Bengel; whose arrangement is adopted by Bishop Lloyd, in his edition of the Greek Testament.

Πνεύματι ἁγίῳ. ¹⁷ Εἰ οὖν τὴν ἵσην δωρεὰν ἔδωκεν αὐτοῖς ὁ Θεὸς ὡς καὶ ἡμῖν, πιστεύσασιν ἐπὶ τὸν Κύριον Ἰησοῦν Χριστὸν, ἐγὼ ^αδέ^ε τίς ἥμην, δυνατὸς κωλῦσαι τὸν Θεόν; ¹⁸ Ἀκούσαντες δὲ ταῦτα ἡσύχασαν, καὶ ἔδόξαζον τὸν Θεόν, λέγοντες Ἀραγε καὶ τοῖς ἔθνεσιν ὁ Θεὸς τὴν μετάνοιαν ἔδωκεν εἰς ζωήν.

²⁷ Ἐν ταύταις δὲ ταῖς ἡμέραις κατῆλθον ἀπὸ Ἱεροσολύμων προφῆται εἰς Ἀντιοχειαν. ²⁸ ἀναστὰς δὲ εἰς ἐξ αὐτῶν ὀνόματι Ἀγαθος, ἐσήμανε διὰ τοῦ with the Holy Ghost. ¹⁷ Forasmuch then as God gave them the like gift as he did unto us, who believed on the Lord Jesus Christ: what was I that I could withstand God? ¹⁸ When they heard these things, they held their peace, and glorified God, saying. Then hath God also to the Gentiles granted repentance unto life.

¹⁹ Now they which were scattered abroad upon the persecution that arose about Stephen, travelled as far as Phenice, and Cyprus, and Antioch, preaching the word to none, but unto the Jews only. ²⁰ And some of them were men of Cyprus, and Cyrene, which when they were come to Antioch, spake unto the Grecians, preaching the Lord Jesus. ²¹ And the hand of the Lord was with them: and a great number believed, and turned unto the Lord.

²² Then tidings of these things came unto ^{the} ears of the church, which was in Jerusalem: and they sent forth Barnabas, that he should go as far as Antioch.

²³ Who when he came, and had seen the grace of God, was glad, and exhorted them all, that with purpose of heart they would cleave unto the Lord. ²⁴ For he was a good man, and full of the Holy Ghost, and of faith: and much people was added unto the Lord.

²⁵ Then departed Barnabas to Tarsus, for to seek Saul.

²⁶ And when he had found him, he brought him unto Antioch. And it came to pass, that a whole year they assembled themselves ^awith the church, and taught much people, and the disciples were called Christians first in Antioch.

²⁷ And in these days, came prophets from Jerusalem unto Antioch. ²⁸ And there stood up one of them, named Agabus, and signified by the spirit, that there should be great dearth throughout all the world: which came to pass in the days of Claudius Cæsar. ²⁹ Then the disciples, every man according to his ability, determined to send relief unto the brethren which dwelt in Judæa. ³⁰ Which also they did, and sent it to the elders by the hands of Barnabas and Saul.

12. Now about that time, Herod the king ^astretched forth his hands, to vex certain of the church. ² And he killed James the brother of John with the sword.

³ And because he saw it pleased the Jews, he proceeded further, to take Peter also. (Then were the days of unleavened bread.) ⁴ And when he had apprehended him, he put him in prison, and delivered him to four quaternions of soldiers to keep him, intending after Easter to bring him forth to the people. ⁵ Peter therefore was kept in prison, but prayer was made ^b without ceasing of the church unto God for him.

⁶ And when Herod would have brought him forth, the same night Peter was sleeping between two soldiers, bound with two chains, and the keepers before the door kept the prison. ⁷ And behold, the angel of the Lord came upon him, and a light shined in the prison: and he smote Peter on the side, and raised him up, saying, Arise up quickly. And his chains fell off from his hands. ⁸ And the angel said unto him, Gird thyself, and bind on thy sandals: and so he did. And he saith unto him, Cast thy garment about thee, and follow me. ⁹ And he went out, and followed him, and wist not that it was true which

12. Καὶ ἐκεῖνον δὲ τὸν καιρὸν ἐπέβαλεν Ἡρώδης ὁ βασιλεὺς τὰς χεῖρας κακῶσαι τινας τῶν ἀπὸ τῆς ἐκκλησίας. ² ἀνείλε δὲ Ἰάκωβον τὸν ἀδελφὸν Ἰωάννου μαχαίρᾳ.

AMONG the entire body of words occurring in the New Testament, three classes have been specifically distinguished ; namely,

- (1) Those, the occurrence of which may be regarded as commencing within the later Greek period, which is here reckoned from Polybius inclusive, marked (L. G.) :
- (2) New Testament words, marked (N. T.) ; those, namely, which occur in the New Testament alone, or, if also found elsewhere, only in certain peculiar quarters :
- (3) Those which, besides their occurrence in the New Testament, are found only in the Septuagint and kindred writings, marked (S.).
