My dear Senator Lehman,-

I cannot resist a word of satisfaction that your friends and admirers have arranged a dinner in your honor here in March.

I count it a privilege to be one of them. At a time like this when liberals are challenged to justify their faith, your consistent courage is heartening to us all.

I shall always remain in your debt for gracing the dinner a few years ago which marked my retirement from executive responsibilities with this organization - and for making so significant a speech on foreign policy in relation to democracy.

With warm regards,

Sincerely yours,

Roger Baldwin
