Denmark Hailed for Saving 6,500 Jews From Hitler

CINCINNATI, March 26 (AP)—Denmark, from King to commoner, was honored today for re-enacting the Book of Exodus when it saved its Jewish citizens from the destruction planned by the twentieth century Pharaoh, Adolf Hitler.

Hitler had ordered the deportation of the Danish Jews from the occupied country. Death and destruction awaited them in Nazi Germany.

The day before the Gestapo was to strike, Danish Christians, inspired by their King, opened their homes to provide emergency hiding places. Then night after night, from October to December, 1943, the Danes ferried 6,500 Danes of Jewish faith to Sweden. Not a Jewish life was lost.

The Hebrew Union College, America's first seminary for training rabbis, today conferred the honorary degree of Doctor of Humane Letters upon Henrik de Kauffmann, Danish Ambassador to the United States, as a salute to Denmark for its dramatic war-time rescue.
