Honorable Herbert H. Lehman
Senate Office Building
Washington, D. C.

My dear Senator Lehman:

Part of my year's end reading, made possible by temporary interruption of my teaching engagements, has been to catch up with some of your Senate speeches which have kindly been sent me. I want to take this opportunity to tell you once again of my admiration and of my gratitude for the services you perform for us all. Your utterances achieve a consistently high plane of excellence and, as in your forthright contributions to the McCarthy censure debate, they are marked as well by the firm moral resolve that one wishes were characteristic of all Senators.

My thanks -- and my warm good wishes for the year ahead.

Faithfully yours,

Walter Gellhorn
