TO THE EDITOR OF THE NEW YORK TIMES:

Let's stop talking about whether filibustering in the United States Congress is "democratic" or not. Think of all the other important business which is waiting for consideration. Standing around the clock to make speeches which have nothing to do with the issue would seem in any other kind of organization to be inefficient and stupid.

You have a lot of readers with bright ideas who are concerned to keep this country democratic and efficient in discussion as well. Can't they come up with some substitute for filibustering?
