SUBJ: Filing of original letters and telegrams of congratulations.

I am rather perturbed about your having part of the originals and our having part of the original letters and telegrams.

If you are trying to do what was done in 1938, namely, make a book with everybody in it, then I recommend that after the whole thing is over, we alphabetize everything and turn it over to someone like Martha Lindsay and let her make that book. If, however, you are planning to keep certain letters and telegrams in one place and certain ones in another, then I am very fearful confusion is going to come out of it because we will have no record of where anything is kept.

I hope you don't mind my injecting my little analytical prognosis on this problem, but I know what happens when letters and telegrams pertaining to one set of congratulations is placed in two separate types of files.

I hesitate to say this to you because I do not know what you are doing, but we were keeping certain things that you sent us marked "acknowledged" and planned to file these with the ones that had been acknowledged. You are now handling the problem differently and I am perturbed as to what is going to happen with the whole parcel of congratulations, part of which will be with you and part with us.

Affectionately,

Carolin
