MEMORANDUM

TO: SENATOR LEHMAN

In regard to The Nation article, the writer, Kemler, was in the office the other day, and I spent some time with him. He already had a copy of my letter to McWilliams, and I conveyed to him the further points you made in your various communications to me on the subject.

I also hit much heavier than I had in my letter the question of substance and general approach, to which you referred in your letter to me of August 23rd.

He undertook to revise the article and to let me see the revised version. I assume that McWilliams, Managing Editor of The Nation, will submit it to me, in any event.
