The Honorable Herbert H. Lehman
United States Senate
Washington, D. C.

My dear Senator:

On Wednesday, February 11, if the Senate is in session but if not, then on the first session thereafter, I plan to address the Senate on a subject that is close to your heart and that of every other liberal in Congress, namely, "How can we best conserve and continue to protect our natural resources for the benefit of all the people?"

This is the first of a series of talks on conservation policies which I intend to make from time to time during the next few months. I shall consider it a personal favor if you will be present for at least a part of the discussion and make whatever contribution to the subject you may care to offer. The title of my first talk is "A Report to the People on Electric Power Policy."

With best wishes always,

Cordially,

Wayne Morse
