Dear Mr Lehmann,

According to my present plans I am likely to be in New York for one day early next week and I may endeavour to communicate with you by telephone.

The main purpose of this letter, however, is to ask you if you know the address of Eleanor Roosevelt who, I am advised, is not as well in health as we would like her to be. Although I will have only a day, I want to enlist your good services to tell Mrs Roosevelt that I am in London, and that if it is convenient I would like to call on her during my stay in New York.

Kind personal regards to Mrs Lehmann and yourself, with the hope that I will either meet you or have a conversation over the telephone during the day that I am in New York.

After the visit to New York, I plan to spend a day in Washington and another day in San Francisco, and then leave for New Zealand.

With kind regards,

Yours sincerely,
