History

In 1913 the Furen Academy 輔仁社 was established in Beijing¹ 北京 by two Chinese Catholic scholars, and it operated as a private Catholic academy until 1918. Its successor, the Catholic University of Beijing 北京公教大學附屬輔仁社 was founded in 1925. Two years later the school changed its Chinese name to 私立北京輔仁大學, and again in 1928 when the former capital city Beijing was renamed Beiping² 北平. In 1933 administration of the school was transferred from an American Benedictine order, whose financial backing had suffered during the Great Depression, to the German Society for the Divine Word. In 1950, under the new People's Republic, the school was renamed Furen National University 國立輔仁大學. It was able to remain open until 1952, when anti-Catholic pressure forced its closure and integration into Beijing Normal University. In 1960 Furen Catholic University 私立輔仁大學 was reestablished in Taipei county, Taiwan, where it continues to operate today.

The California College in China was first founded as the North China Union Language School in Beijing in 1910. The college was formally incorporated in 1930 by the missionary William B. Pettus for the purpose of educating Americans in Chinese history, language, and culture. In 1942, with the disruption of the war and Japanese forces occupying Beiping, the campus was moved to the grounds of the University of California at Berkeley.

Collection Scope and Content Note

The collection consists of a single bound volume containing 13 photographs of ink paintings. The book is titled 基督教聖蹟圖 (Christian Sacred Pictures). The original paintings were produced by four Chinese artists working in the art department of the Catholic University in Beiping, and exhibited in February 1937 at the College of Chinese Studies, California College in China. Although the subjects are Christian themes, the artworks are executed in the traditional Chinese style of monochromatic ink painting. The book includes a summary of the circumstances behind the exhibition written by W.B. Pettus, and a list of titles for the artworks.
