Biography

Edward Hicks Hume was born on May 13 1876 in Ahmednagar, India. Son of a school principal, Hume was educated in the classics but was finally persuaded by his father to study medicine. After graduating from Yale and Johns Hopkins, in 1903 he married Helen Charlotta Carswell, 1876 - 1976.<sup>1</sup> Hume practiced medicine in Bombay from 1903 until 1905, when he joined the Yale mission in China. The following year he founded the Yale hospital in Changsha 長沙, Hunan 湖南. In 1914 he founded the Yale-Hunan (Xiangya 湘亞) Medical College, and three years later he helped found the Yale-China hospital. He also served as President of the Colleges of Yale-in-China from 1923 until 1926, when he resigned due to a dispute over policy and returned to the United States. From 1934 to 1937 he returned to East Asia, promoting greater Chinese involvement in missionary medical work. He died on February 9 1957 in Wallingford, NH.

Hume published a number of books during his lifetime, including The Chinese Way in Medicine (1940) and Doctors East Doctors West (1946). Hume's cousin Robert Earnest Hume, 1877 - 1948, was a faculty member of Union Theological Seminary in New York City from 1914 to 1943.

Collection Scope and Content Note

This collection was reconstructed from previously unprocessed material in the MRL archives. The bulk of the collection consists of typewritten correspondence and a pamphlet describing Hume's son Theodore Carswell Hume, 1904 - 1943. T.C. Hume was appointed to head a relief program anticipating the end of the war, but died before he could begin his work when the plane transporting him to Stockholm was shot down off the coast of Sweden. There are also a number of Chinese paper coins, designed to be burnt as offerings during funerary rites.

The present collection is only a part of that originally accessioned to the MRL. The location of the remainder of the papers is unknown.

The main collection of papers for Hume is housed at Yale University Library, Manuscripts and Archives.

Edward H. and Lotta C. Hume Papers, 1897 - 1990.

Processing
