Biography<sup>1</sup>

Frank Joseph Rawlinson 樂靈生 was born in 1871 in Langham, Rutland county, England. In 1889 he and his younger brother came to the United States, and he soon became a member of a Baptist church in Baltimore. He studied at Bucknell University from 1895 to 1899, after which he married Carrie Dietz and entered Rochester Theological Seminary. Graduating in 1903, in the same year he was ordained, became a U.S. citizen, and was appointed as a missionary to China under the auspices of the Southern Baptist Convention. He arrived in Shanghai on October 16, 1902 and began work with the Central China Mission.

In June 1911, Rawlinson secured a place on the editorial board of The Chinese Recorder (教務雜誌), and in 1914, the same year that he was appointed to the executive committee of the China Continuation Committee, he replaced the retiring editor-in-chief of the periodical. In 1917 while on furlough in America, his wife died and he was remarried the same year to Florence Lang. Also in that year he earned an M.A. from Teacher's College of Columbia University, and was awarded an honorary D.D. from Bucknell University. From 1918 he lectured at the Nanking University School for Missionaries, and from 1921 also regularly lectured at the North China Union Language School in Beijing. His liberal views on Christian and Chinese beliefs antagonized the Southern Baptist Mission Board, however, and in 1921 he was dismissed from his pastorate of Grace Church in Shanghai.

In May of the next year Rawlinson was accepted to the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions, and evidently did not regret leaving his former mission affiliation. He became involved with the National Christian Council of China and edited their Chinese Christian Yearbook from 1922. From 1924 to 1925 he studied and lectured as a McFadden Mission Fellow at Union Theological Seminary in New York City. Throughout the 1920s and 1930s he continued lecturing, writing, and serving as editor of The Chinese Recorder. On August 14 1937, during a Japanese attack on Shanghai, Rawlinson was killed when a bomb was accidentally dropped on to a busy intersection by a damaged Chinese plane.

Collection Scope and Content Note

This collection covers a period from Rawlinson's year of instruction and study at UTS to his death. Most of the material relates to his studies of Christianity in China and of Chinese religious culture and history.

Additional material by Rawlinson can be found in the Burke Library's Missionary Research Library Pamphlets collection, folders 0484, 2161, 2192, and 2357.

Processing

Metal clips and staples were removed from materials and folded items were flattened. Materials were placed in new acid-free folders and boxes. Acidic items were separated from one another by interleaving with acid-free paper as needed. Fragile items in folders 8 and 9 were replaced with acid-free photocopies and the originals separated into restricted folder 10.
