THE PUBLIC INTEREST LAW FOUNDATION ("PILF")

PILF is an independent, student-run nonprofit at Columbia Law School that advocates for the use of legal education in the public service as a method of enriching the communities in which we live as well as the careers and personal lives of law students and lawyers. Each year, PILF is a significant source of funding for Columbia Law School students dedicated to working in public interest, government and nonprofit. Since its inception, PILF has also contributed more than $1 million in vital assistance to legal services organizations in New York City and across the United States through our Community Grants program. All net proceeds from the Annual Dinner and other donations will continue supporting summer public interest fellowships for Columbia Law School students.

THE ANNUAL DINNER

Since 1991, PILF’s Annual Dinner has brought together Columbia Law School alumni, faculty, students, and New York-area lawyers to present the Public Interest Achievement Award to an individual who has made significant contributions to public interest law. The Annual Dinner is underwritten by law firms and friends of PILF. All net proceeds support fellowships for student summer work and PILF’s Community Grants program.

25TH ANNUAL DINNER

PILF is thrilled to honor

Peter Lehner, CLS ’84
Executive Director of the Natural Resources Defense Council with its

Public Interest Achievement Award

for his significant contributions to the field of public interest law
ABOUT THE HONOREE

Peter Lehner is the Executive Director of the Natural Resources Defense Council (NRDC), one of the nation’s leading environmental advocacy organizations. NRDC’s 450 lawyers, scientists, policy experts, and other professionals, with the support of more than 1.5 million members and activists, tackle the biggest environmental issues facing the planet today. Peter helps guide NRDC’s work to protect communities from the pollution that threatens our air, water, and climate, defend wildlife and wild places, revive our oceans, curb global warming and hasten a clean energy future, and foster the development of sustainable communities.

Peter served as chief of the Environmental Protection Bureau of the New York State Attorney General’s office for eight years. He supervised all environmental litigation by the state, prosecuted polluters, defeated many Bush administration efforts to roll back environmental safeguards, and developed innovative multi-state strategies for environmental protection, including cases establishing the authority of the EPA to limit greenhouse gases from power plants and leading to new federal rules limiting smog, soot, and toxic pollution. Previously, Peter created and led the environmental prosecution unit for New York City, including a broad effort to protect the city’s harbor and drinking water.

Peter holds an AB in philosophy and mathematics from Harvard College and is an honors graduate of Columbia University Law School, where he taught for many years. He also has extensive experience in sustainable farming and green business.
