College Receives Mellon Grant To Develop New Multicultural Sequence For Core Curriculum

By James Devitt

Columbia College's Heyman Center for the Humanities has won a three-year, $309,000 grant from the Mellon Foundation to support a series of programs called "Our Neighbors," which will focus on the many University affiliated and non-affiliated workers in the College's Core Curriculum. The site also contains links to Columbia websites and recent Columbia reports and publications.

In the community section, visitors can find information and contacts for programs that serve the community, including lists of University affiliated and non-affiliated day care centers and information on how to apply for a job on a construction site.

The construction section offers details on University projects, including reports on new buildings and the process in action as members work to see the student aid funding into law for fiscal year 2003 (4/1/03-6/30/03).

The site currently includes a vendor database, a resource for University affiliated and non-affiliated day care centers and information on how to apply for a job on a construction site.

In the community section, visitors can find information and contacts for programs that serve the community, including lists of University affiliated and non-affiliated day care centers and information on how to apply for a job on a construction site.

Our Neighbors” Website Launched May 15 with News, Links to the Columbia Community

By Ellen S. Smith

At mid to late May a number of Columbia and Barnard interns will head to Washington, D.C., to learn about the legislative process or other policy issues. The interns placed by the Office of Government Relations in the Office of Public Affairs include those who will work for senators and representatives in D.C. or in the local offices of these individuals.

Interns were placed during the legislative process by Elizabeth Notman (SIPA '03) and will have an exciting program of meetings with key alumni in congress and senior executive branch or press positions during their summer in D.C. organized by Bill Blakely (SIPA '03). Joining by their graduate student col-

The Fiscal year 2003 (10/01/02- 9/30/03) annual report for the budget process moving through the budget process. Congressman Sherwood Boehlert of the House Ways and Means Committee introduced a bipartis-

At the same time, students will be able to see the student aid funding process in action as members work on annual funding bills for financing a higher education.

The final report for fiscal year 2003 (4/1/03- 3/31/03) slated to be completed within the next two weeks and although budgetary stresses are apparent, it is expected that student aid will receive less funding. At the same time with fiscal constraints, initiatives such as incubators for encouraging young businesses are likely to be included in the final agreement.

The Fiscal year 2003 (10/01/02- 9/30/03) annual report for the budget process moving through the budget process. Congressman Sherwood Boehlert of the House Ways and Means Committee introduced a bipartis-

At the same time, students will be able to see the student aid funding process in action as members work on annual funding bills for financing a higher education.

The final report for fiscal year 2003 (4/1/03- 3/31/03) slated to be completed within the next two weeks and although budgetary stresses are apparent, it is expected that student aid will receive less funding. At the same time with fiscal constraints, initiatives such as incubators for encouraging young businesses are likely to be included in the final agreement.

The Fiscal year 2003 (10/01/02- 9/30/03) annual report for the budget process moving through the budget process. Congressman Sherwood Boehlert of the House Ways and Means Committee introduced a bipartis-

At the same time, students will be able to see the student aid funding process in action as members work on annual funding bills for financing a higher education.

The final report for fiscal year 2003 (4/1/03- 3/31/03) slated to be completed within the next two weeks and although budgetary stresses are apparent, it is expected that student aid will receive less funding. At the same time with fiscal constraints, initiatives such as incubators for encouraging young businesses are likely to be included in the final agreement.