Columbia College’s 2003 Dean’s Day Offers Alumni, Parents A Glimpse of Student Life

The Dean’s Day program was full of stimulating and enlightening topics, ranging from the teaching of science to talks on “Shaping a Life Through Storytelling”, “The Latinization of America” and “Ghandi’s India.” The day is designed to offer Columbia alumni, parents and friends the opportunity to engage in the kind of intellectual discussions that characterize daily exchanges between faculty and students.

Columbia College Dean Austin Quigley addresses the audience in Lerner Hall’s Roone Arledge Auditorium.
