Knight-Bagehot Fellows Named

(Continued from Page 1)

School of Journalism and directed by Terri Thompson, a former associate editor of U.S. News & World Report and reporter for Business Week and a graduate of the program.

Funds are provided by an endowment from the Knight Foundation and by grants from foundations and corporations, which have included The New York Times, McGraw-Hill Companies, Merrill Lynch & Co. Foundation, Inc., Cit-igroup and Dow Jones & Co.

The 2003-2004 Knight-Bagehot Fellows in Economics and Business Journalism are:

Isabel Darrigrandi, 33, based in New York City.

Tom D. Fowler, 33, a business reporter for the Houston Chronicle.

Karen F. Donovan, 42, a lawyer-studying for a Master of Letters in New York City.

Daniel Eisenberg, 33, a staff writer for Time Magazine in New York.

A nnie Pfeifer, CC’04, who was recently selected to be a 2003 Truman Scholar, has already made major strides in the field of public serv-

In the first summer, Pfeifer

During that summer, Pfeifer

Knight-Bagehot Fellows Named

2003 Owl Award Presented—The School of General Studies (GS) paid tribute to GS alumna Barbara Levy recently at the School’s annual Owl Dinner for alumni and friends. Levy, center, pictured here with President Lee C. Bollinger, left, and GS Dean Peter Awn, was among the first grad-

Dan Jenkins, a 2003 Truman Scholar, dedicates his fellowship to the knowledge represented by the late Earth Institute Director, John Marburger, visiting campus earlier in the week at the invita-

The Barry Goldwater scholar-

Our editors are working on this document. Please check back later.

LEGISLATIVE UPDATE

State Bills Restore Education Funds

By ELLEN S. SMITH

State Assembly and Senate bud-gest bills passed last week restore

The Barry Goldwater scholar-

Applicants are expected to attend graduate school in economics and what effect a large cut

In the first year of the program,

To encourage outstanding students to pursue careers in mathematics, the

The Governor reportedly will
to the deficit.

The bill would elevate science within the federal level. However, the Senate will consider the Energy

The bill would provide a blue print for the annual funding committees although they may not fund the

The House of Representatives proposes a $550 billion bill and the Senate has approved a $350 billion plan. The

The Senate is considering a bill at the Committee level. Once passed, the bills

This week the House of Representatives is considering HR 766, a three year $2.4 billion research program in nanotechnology. It

The Senate is considering a bill at the Committee level. Once passed, the bills

The Governor reportedly will

Annie Pfeifer, CC’04, Awarded Truman Scholarship for her Public Policy Efforts

Annie Pfeifer, CC’03, is the recipient of a 2003 Truman Scholarship.

Annie Pfeifer, CC’03, Awarded Truman Scholarship for her Public Policy Efforts

Annie Pfeifer, CC’04, who was recently selected to be a 2003 Truman Scholar, has already made major strides in the field of public serv-

In the first summer, Pfeifer

During that summer, Pfeifer

Knight-Bagehot Fellows Named

2003 Owl Award Presented—The School of General Studies (GS) paid tribute to GS alumna Barbara Levy recently at the School’s annual Owl Dinner for alumni and friends. Levy, center, pictured here with President Lee C. Bollinger, left, and GS Dean Peter Awn, was among the first grad-

Dan Jenkins, a 2003 Truman Scholar, dedicates his fellowship to the knowledge represented by the late Earth Institute Director, John Marburger, visiting campus earlier in the week at the invita-

The Barry Goldwater scholar-

Applicants are expected to attend graduate school in economics and what effect a large cut

In the first year of the program,

To encourage outstanding students to pursue careers in mathematics, the

The Governor reportedly will
to the deficit.

The bill would elevate science within the federal level. However, the Senate will consider the Energy

The House of Representatives proposes a $550 billion bill and the Senate has approved a $350 billion plan. The

The Senate is considering a bill at the Committee level. Once passed, the bills

The Governor reportedly will

Annie Pfeifer, CC’04,Awarded Truman Scholarship for her Public Policy Efforts

Annie Pfeifer, CC’03, is the recipient of a 2003 Truman Scholarship.