Award-Winning Historian David Kennedy Elected to Pulitzer Board

BY CAROLINE LADHANI

David Kennedy, a professor of History at Columbia University, has been elected to the Pulitzer Board. Kennedy, who has taught at Stanford University since 1993, was named the Donald J. McLachlan Professor of History in 1999 and was selected to the American Academy of Arts and Sciences and the American Philosophical Society. Kennedy has served on the boards of many organizations, including the Educational Testing Service's Test Development Committee for Advanced Placement Examination in U.S. History as well as the advisory boards of several PBS television series, including The American Experience.

Among his many honors, Kennedy was named a fellow of the American Council of Learned Societies and the Guggenheim Foundation and was selected to the American Academy of Arts and Sciences and the American Philosophical Society.

The 2003 Pulitzer Prizes will be announced on April 7 and presented on May 29 in a ceremony in the Low Library Rotunda. Columbia awards the Pulitzer Prizes after their determination by the board. Members of the board serve a maximum of nine years.
