Climate Change Information Resources, New York Metropolitan Region (CCIR-NYC)

What is happening to the climate in the New York area? What will it mean for the people who live here?

A CULTURAL SERIES

What is a film, or a stage production, or a concerto, or a three-word essay, all about? It is about dialogue, or “the art of being and having,” to quote E. Aracelis Francis of the University of California, Berkeley. For, in the end, is what a culture is all about – the common bonds that hold us together?

This spring, the Earth Institute will host a series of cultural events exploring the role of dialogue in climate change and sustainability.

Dialogue?”

The Philosopher and the Art of Revelation. All are welcome.
jmuyle@eisn.columbia.edu

Well, it’s not just a film, it’s a cultural event – a series of events. For this spring, the Earth Institute plans to build bridges and to foster integrative analyses, by bringing advocates or critics of civil society or world governance together with prominent scholars engaged in gender research.
