A new look at one of the early moments of American political history: a decade of political uncertainty in the United States, from 1750 to 1760, when the seeds of the American Revolution were sown. In this groundbreaking work, Takara, a history professor at Dartmouth College, explores the political landscape of the time, including the development of ideas and the actions of key figures. The result is a fresh and engaging look at an important period in American history.

By Sheri M. Whitley

On Campus

By Kristin Sterling

Student Profile

Amerika: Not Karla, Liska

By Sheila M. Whitley

FEBRUARY 7, 2005

By Beatrice Terrell

On Campus

By Kristin Sterling

Student Profile

Amerika: Not Karla, Liska

By Sheila M. Whitley

The Bancroft Dissertation Award is given annually for an outstanding dissertation in the field of American history. The award is sponsored by the Bancroft Library, a center for the study of American history and culture, and includes a cash prize of $5,000 and a commemorative plaque. The award is open to students at any level of study who have completed a dissertation in the field of American history. The recipient is selected by a committee of experts in the field.