Our Shared Future Taking Shape in Manhattanville

AN ACADEMIC CAMPUS BUILT FOR URBAN LIFE

The Jerome J. and Vicki Manes Science Center, designed by Diller Scofidio + Renfro in collaboration with FXFOWLE, will be home to Columbia's Mortimer B. Zuckerman Mind Brain Behavior Science Center. The center will house programs on the brain, mental health, and neuroscience for K-12 students, teachers and the community. The Science Center will house retail space and the Center for Education and Outreach, offering a variety of programs for the public.

The Columbia Business School is moving into the Henry R. Kravis Building and the Ronald O. Perelman Center for Political Science. The Perelman Center, designed by Renzo Piano Building Workshop with Diller Scofidio + Renfro in collaboration with FXFOWLE, will be home to Columbia's Mortimer B. Zuckerman Mind Brain Behavior Science Center. The center will house programs on the brain, mental health, and neuroscience for K-12 students, teachers and the community. The Science Center will house retail space and the Center for Education and Outreach, offering a variety of programs for the public.

The University Forum is a multi-purpose venue, designed by Renzo Piano Building Workshop with Diller Scofidio + Renfro in collaboration with FXFOWLE, and will house the business school's engagement in academic and civic life. The University Forum will include a 430-seat auditorium, meeting rooms and University offices.

The Studebaker Building, once the site of an auto-manufacturing facility, received a LEED Silver award from the U.S. Green Building Council for Columbia’s renovation, which created environmentally sustainable public spaces and office amenities.

Columbia Business School in design phase

Columbia Business School under construction

The Science Center, designed by Renzo Piano Building Workshop with Diller Scofidio + Renfro in collaboration with FXFOWLE, will facilitate the business school’s engagement in academic and civic life, ensuring that it will be a vibrant center of world class center of pioneering research and education.

The Center for Jazz Studies, designed by Renzo Piano Building Workshop with Diller Scofidio + Renfro in collaboration with FXFOWLE, will include a 430-seat auditorium, meeting rooms and University offices.

Like cities themselves, universities exist and are shaped by the diverse communities that come together to live and work in a dynamic environment that is open to new ideas and new opportunity.

INVESTING IN LOCAL OPPORTUNITY

Columbia has long maintained a wide array of community-based partnerships and programs that provide education, health care, legal services, economic opportunity, arts and culture to our neighbors. That commitment to service and civic engagement has worked with professionals from 59 different MWBE firms. Columbia has worked with people from 59 different MWBE firms.

INVESTING IN LOCAL OPPORTUNITY

$76 million for the West Harlem Development Corporation to invest in community needs and infrastructure

$20 million fund to help preserve and expand local affordable housing

Free local shuttle bus service for seniors and those with disabilities

Tutoring for local residents working toward a GED and job training opportunities, including computer training for local community members as well as seniors in Manhattanville and Grant Houses

Undergraduate scholarships for local students admitted to Columbia College and the Fu Foundation School of Engineering and Applied Science

A GREEN AND WELCOMING CAMPUS

The University Forum is a multi-purpose venue, designed by Renzo Piano Building Workshop with Diller Scofidio + Renfro in collaboration with FXFOWLE, and will house the business school’s engagement in academic and civic life. The University Forum will include a 430-seat auditorium, meeting rooms and University offices.

Columbia Business School in design phase

Columbia Business School under construction

The Science Center, designed by Renzo Piano Building Workshop with Diller Scofidio + Renfro in collaboration with FXFOWLE, will facilitate the business school’s engagement in academic and civic life, ensuring that it will be a vibrant center of world class center of pioneering research and education.

The Center for Jazz Studies, designed by Renzo Piano Building Workshop with Diller Scofidio + Renfro in collaboration with FXFOWLE, will include a 430-seat auditorium, meeting rooms and University offices.

Like cities themselves, universities exist and are shaped by the diverse communities that come together to live and work in a dynamic environment that is open to new ideas and new opportunity.