

Xiaojie Zhou
04.15.05

My Spring Break 2005: Miami and the O.C.

I had a fabulous spring break. Four of my friends and I decided to go to Miami because New York is so cold in the winter.

It's 70 degrees in Miami right now and the weather is marvelous. Everyday we enjoyed the outside, getting tanner and tanner. During the night we'd go out for delicious meals.

One day, as we were playing by the beach, we saw something strange: a nearby road had been blocked off.

After asking around, we found out that our favorite television show was filming right in front of our eyes. My roommate adores one of the actors in the show and upon seeing him, she started jumping up and down screaming, "THERE'S MY FUTURE HUSBAND!!!". I pretended I didn't know her.

After the filming finished, my roommate followed the actors back to their hotel in hopes of sneakily getting a picture of them. I really thought she'd lost her mind and at that point I left.

This is one of the interesting events of our trip.