

My Spring Break in Puerto Rico

For this year's spring break I went to Puerto Rico for a total five days and four nights. My friends and I stayed in a hotel near the ocean. Puerto Rico's weather was very hot. Almost everyday was around 80 degrees.

On the first day, we arrived at Puerto Rico around twelve. On that day, we didn't do much because most of us wanted to rest. However, in the afternoon we went to a beach nearby our hotel to walk and chat. After we got tired, we headed back to our hotel to sleep.

On the second day we started to explore Puerto Rico's environment. In the morning we went to the ocean to go scuba diving. Our scuba instructor's attitude was not great. He had little patience teaching us, and assumed we already knew how to dive. We thought that we would first go into the shallow waters to practice, but he quickly brought us in the middle of the ocean and commanded us to prepare to dive! When we first got into the water we were afraid, but after a while we got used it and it became a lot more fun. There were so many colorful fishes in the sea. We saw blue, green, orange and red fishes

On the night of the third day we went to canoeing in the ocean. The ocean water there is unique. Inside the waters there is glowing plankton. When the water moves, these plankton emit a green light. When we swam in the ocean water, the water emitted a beautiful glow. I will never forget it.

On the fourth day, everybody decided to go to Old San Juan to shop at its numerous stores but there was not anything good to look at, so we went to the Bacardi factory to drink rum. After we finished drinking, we went back to the hotel to sleep, to catch tomorrow's plane.
