Even though I didn't do a lot of particularly interesting things, my spring break went very quickly. Because my mom and dad went to Hawaii on vacation, I didn't return home right away and instead spent a few days in New York. I saw some old friends, went out to eat, went shopping, and spent time with them. I also went to New Brunswick and stayed with a friend for a night. She had just leased a new apartment. I helped her move in and organize her home. Seeing old friends and chatting with them is always very interesting.

My mom and dad returned home on Thursday. I also returned home and spent two days there. My mom and dad said they had a great time on vacation. Hawaii had beautiful settings and great weather. On Saturday night, I went back to New York because I had to work on Sunday morning. Saturday night I did some schoolwork and then fell asleep. Sunday morning I awoke from bed at eight-thirty to catch a train to Garden City to teach SAT class. After work, I didn't get back to my dorm till six o'clock. That was my spring break.
