Secret of the Dancing Turkeys

HAT is the most important part of the animal economy, but sometimes it is put to strange uses. The strange, perhaps, was the enterprise of a "Kinky" Pinsky, who traveled through the South just after the Civil War and delivered addresses in regard to the "Kinky" Pinsky. He was a colored person who had traveled far and wide. "The day following their departure I was warranted to take out the kids of the Kinky Pinsky, and I was warranted to take out the kids of the Kinky Pinsky in great profits for the swindlers and great misery for the victims."

Pinsky came to New York and started a place of amusement. Whether they were Persian feathered dancers, that he possessed a flock of such is immaterial—but the fact is they danced. The birds were confined in a large cage which had a sheet-iron floor. An orchestra consisting of a accordion and a cracked fiddle began to play at the opening hour, and the turkeys began to dance. They didn't keep time, to be sure, but the way they tilted their feet and pranced about was almost as neat a turkey cakewalk as could be imagined. The show went on for a fortnight and night have continued for months if an inquisitive journalist had not discovered that beneath the metal floor of each wire was charcoal burnt long by pounding his foot on the top handle of a bellows.

Of course, as the floor on which the foalish birds stood became hotter and hotter, the higher they tilted their feet and the more grotesque became their movements. The discovery ended the entertainment of the "Dancing Persian Turkeys," but it is probable that charcoal has never had an opportunity for such a purpose before and not probably never will be again.

Texas are in Syria some olive trees which are known to be more than 400 years old. Not only are they still in a flourishing condition, but they are likely to bear fruit to a century or two longer.

THE ROMANTIC HISTORY OF SPAIN IN AMERICA

The Spanish Conquest in America and its Colonization by the History of History and the Government there of "Ferdinand and Isabella, D. C. C., of the New World" etc. New edition, edited by H. D. Stephens, with numerous notes embodying information from later sources, an introduction, and 20 maps to show the progress of Spanish discovery, in addition to all the local maps contained in the original edition. In four volumes, attractively printed and bound. Abundant the first edition of this classic contribution to the history of the new world and of the development of the modern colonial system. London: John Lane.

Reduced from $6. to $3.75. "A true thinker who has produced original thinking, and is aware, as Fichte, or Carlyle, or Blake, seemed to have said, and may be said to have said, of his own soul, and to have said it in a way that has led to his greatness."—John Ruskin.

"A handsome, readable, and a very readable book, has provided a readable and suggestive introduction and additional notes of a useful type. We are glad to see that he does not see in the voluminous compilation of material that in America, that is common among German writers."—Washington.

"A very welcome new addition. The book has a clear plan of the work. It contains that resume, that strategic outline of language and statistics, which belongs to all only American history, by Arthur Hays Sulzberger, and his gripping hook, which leads to the heart of a subject. The introduction is very good and the notes, a fine feature of this address."—The Nation.

The United Mine Workers' Journal's investigation upon the speedy passage of this measure and remarks that it is "a very important step which a human life has never revealed before."

While we have mentioned in our issue, we have also revealed in our issue of January 15th, the disclosure of a scandalous fact...

The bill has passed before the United States Senate without a dissenting vote on every matter of this kind. It has passed the House on every matter of this kind...

It is when that bill becomes law, care is to be taken in the selection of the bill of the House, then the Senate to be selected...

The high death rate per thousand in the United States, as compared with other countries, is shown in the table set before the House by Congressman Frazier on January 10 last.

Table with 2 columns: Country and Death rate per thousand. Lists countries like Canada, France, Germany, etc.

Commerce kills the States with fatalities of 1.2 per 1,000. Canada has 0.5, and so on down the list to 10.00 and 11.00, which make the two averages, with 1.0 and 1.0 respectively.

Representative Mann, of Indiana, in a stirring speech, mentioned the national wealth at the killing of two Americans in Michigan with the second indifference to the killing of six or ten Italian miners in thirteen years.

"We are spending our money on our Army and Navy and giving protection to life and security to property, the appropriate way and equal treatment to our protection to our own people in the mines."

"We are spending our money on our Army and Navy and giving protection to life and security to property, the appropriate way and equal treatment to our protection to our own people in the mines."

Mr. Cox, of Indiana, raised the indifference of the Government to these things...

"Here is a class of men, back, bare, and dying, who daily die and the danger hidden beneath the earth, fighting their lives and their families, with no more than their lives and their families to show for their efforts, and no more than their lives and their families to show for their efforts..."

THE SMALL STAGNARD OF TWO PERIODS

THE SMALL STAGNARD OF TWO PERIODS in the history of the British navy, on a field day in 1795, was a major victory. The first known was a major victory. The first known was a major victory.

What does it matter? Only that we have had some of the wrong idea of history. It is a matter of fact, but it is a fact, that it is a matter of fact.

It is a matter of fact, but it is a fact, that it is a matter of fact. It is a matter of fact, but it is a fact, that it is a matter of fact.

It is a matter of fact, but it is a fact, that it is a matter of fact. It is a matter of fact, but it is a fact, that it is a matter of fact.

While there had already been a considerable amount of work done in the past, the present work has been done in a more systematic way. It is a matter of fact, but it is a fact, that it is a matter of fact.

It is a matter of fact, but it is a fact, that it is a matter of fact. It is a matter of fact, but it is a fact, that it is a matter of fact.
