

Institutional Conflicts of Interest

Gerald D. Fischbach, MD
Executive Vice President for Health and Biomedical Science
Dean of the Faculty of Medicine
Columbia University Medical Center

How can an institution maintain the public trust without taking an interest in its own financial gain? How does an institution implement its academic and research missions and preserve the integrity of research without compromising the welfare of human subjects/participants? These and similar questions will be addressed and clarified in this important presentation.