COLUMBIA'S HALL OF BABEL

New Foreigners' Dormitory to House Students of Twenty-Six Different Languages

A MERICAN universities and other education institutions are being taken into the fold of the modern world and are being "internationalized." In the early "days of the world" they used to try to keep the students all of the same nationality but the modern educational atmosphere makes room for every nationality. Not long ago, even the students of Columbia's College were mostly American. Now all kinds of students are attending those universities and even foreign countries, and Columbia is not behind the times.

The number of foreign students is now over 500, but the old dormitories in the old part of the university are not big enough to accommodate all of them.

The new dormitory which is going to be built will be erected within the next ten or twelve months, and the work of building will be done by the student body. The dormitory will be the first of its kind in the United States, and will be the largest of its kind in the world.

When the new dormitory is completed, it will be occupied by the non-American students, and the old dormitories will be left for the American students.

The plan for the new dormitory includes several large lecture rooms, and a large library. The library will be open to all students, both American and foreign, and will contain a large number of books in the different languages.

The new dormitory will be a great boon to the foreign students, and will give them a place where they can study and live together. It will also be a great help to the American students, as they will have more room to study and live in.

In conclusion, we can say that the new dormitory is a great boon to the foreign students, and will give them a place where they can study and live together. It will also be a great help to the American students, as they will have more room to study and live in.

Published: July 10, 1921
Copyright © The New York Times