The Alliance Summer School began as a student-led initiative in 2012 in effort to promote interdisciplinary exchanges between doctoral students at Alliance institutions researching the nexus of science and policy.

The Summer School brings together world-class professors, industry experts and PhD students at a weeklong event. Our focus this year is on the complex interactions in the study of sustainability. The presentation and workshop sessions foster potential research collaborations and promote the exchange of ideas.

The organizing team is currently in the process of contacting potential speakers for 2016. Notable speakers from past Summer Schools include Christian Gollier, Professor and Director of Toulouse School of Economics; Eric Maskin, Nobel Laureate and Professor of Economics at Princeton; Jeffrey Sachs, Director of The Earth Institute at Columbia University; Bob Watson, former IPCC Chair; Jean Jouzel, IPCC Group I Chair; and Laurence Tubiana, Special Representative for the 2015 Paris Climate Conference, amongst others.

Eligibility: Ph.D./Research-based Masters Students interested in the study of sustainability and complexity.

Participation fee: 60 EUR (to be confirmed, covers all lunches and refreshments)

Applications are now accepted until March 28th, 2016.
