The papers consist of correspondence, manuscripts, documents, subject files, photographs, and printed materials, and chiefly concern the post-1917 emigration; the Rodichevs settled in Switzerland. There is a great deal of family correspondence, including letters from Fedor I. Rodichev to his wife and daughter, letters from their niece Nina Vernadsky (Mrs. George), and from relatives in Soviet Russia in the 1920s and 1930s. There are also many letters by Fedor I. Rodichev to Ivan and Anastasiia Petrunkevich, and to Nataliia Herzen fille. There are many letters to the Rodichevs from such Kadet leaders as Nikolai Astrov, Iosif Gessen, Vasilii Maklakov, Pavel Miliukov, Sofiia Panina, and Ivan Petrunkevich, and items by Aleksandr I. Herzen, Nikolai Ogarev, and Ignacy Jan Paderewski. Manuscripts include memoirs and other writings, with many notes and fragments, written by Fedor Rodichev while in exile. There is also Aleksandra Rodicheva's biography of her father, and materials used by Kermit McKenzie to prepare his edition of Fedor Rodichev's memoirs. Subject files concern such topics as the Russian Civil War, the emigration, and the Rodichev and Herzen families. Among the photographs, which are chiefly of the Rodichevs and their friends and relatives, are two portraits of Giuseppe Garibaldi. Printed materials include clippings and offprints of works by Fedor Rodichev, and some books by, or relating to, members of the Herzen family. SC 7-81

FEDOR IZMAILOVICH RODICHEV: BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCH

Fedor I. Rodichev was born on 9/21 February 1854, into an old family of the nobility of the Tver' region. He graduated from St. Petersburg University in 1876, and then went to Serbia as a volunteer in the war against Turkey. On his return to Russia, he became a leader of the liberal provincial nobility in the Tver' zemstvo, and was the "main architect" of the addresses of the Tver' zemstvo of 1879, 1881, and 1894. In 1902 he was a founder of the liberal Union of Liberation, and in 1905 of the Kadet Party. He served in all four Russian State Dumas (1906-17), where he won fame as an orator; he was the originator of the term "Stolypin necktie" (i.e., hangman's noose). He left Russia during the Civil War, and settled eventually in Switzerland. He died on 28 February 1933.

In 1880 he married Ekaterina Aleksandrovna Svechina (1856-1932). They had two daughters, Sofiia Bernatskaia (1881-1962), and Aleksandra Rodicheva (1882-1971).
